

„There seems to be some connection between the places we have disowned inside ourselves and the key to where we need to go. Life as usual has arranged a way in which we`re not allowed to leave anything behind that is not somehow resolved“.

(David Whyte)